WRITING STYLE

Writing Style Profile

Tune greeting, closing, tone, brevity, stakeholder framing, and mode guidance so generated drafts sound more like you while still staying evidence-based and red-team controlled.

 Draft calibration only

Style can shape wording and tone, but it cannot override safety, evidence, or red-team review.

Core preferences

Set the baseline voice for draft generation.

Use kindly

Let drafts use kind / gentle wording when appropriate.

Use please note

Allow 'please note' for emphasis when a cautionary line is needed.

Stakeholder tone profiles

Adjust the way the draft frames requests for different recipients.

Vessel / captain / chief engineer

Be direct, operational, and plain. Keep instructions and questions short and unambiguous.

Owner / charterer

Be measured, careful, and diplomatic. Separate confirmed facts from assumptions and avoid unnecessary certainty.

Class / surveyor

Be precise, factual, and technically grounded. Use cautious wording and clearly identify what is confirmed versus still under review.

Vendor / procurement

Be firm but polite. State what is required, what is missing, and any deadline or technical constraint clearly.

Management

Be concise, structured, and decision-focused. Summarize the risk, the status, and the next action without over-explaining.

Phrase guidance

Use one phrase per line. These are style cues only and do not override safety.

Liability-sensitive wording rules

Do not admit fault or liability unless the source material explicitly supports it.
Do not accept delay, deviation, unsafe approval, or responsibility without evidence.
Separate confirmed facts from assumptions and next steps.
Do not imply class, owner, or charterer approval unless the evidence says so.

Draft mode guidance

Keep mode-specific guidance short, practical, and aligned with the profile.

Holding statement

Acknowledge receipt, state review is ongoing, and avoid firm conclusions.

Normal technical reply

Answer directly with evidence-backed technical detail, a calm tone, and a clear next action.

Firm but polite

Set boundaries clearly while keeping the tone courteous, professional, and restrained.

Management summary

Summarize the situation, the risk, and the decision point in a concise management-friendly format.

Vessel instruction

Be direct, operational, and unambiguous. Keep it practical for immediate shipboard action.

Vendor clarification

Ask precise clarification questions and list the missing information that is blocking the response.

Owner / charterer sensitive

Use extra caution, avoid liability admissions, and clearly separate facts from assumptions.

Safety guardrails

Style can shape wording, not truth or approval.

Red-team review still controls whether a draft can be copied. Style settings do not unlock copy, mark a draft ready, or change workflow state.
